National conference update for SkillsUSA Utah national conference advisors and contestants.

As most of you already know, the majority of our national conference contestants will be competing this next week. State directors have been left out of the communication loop, so I have been instructed to share the national conference customer care team contact information with our students and advisors. If students or advisors have any issues, concerns or questions arise during the competition, they must contact a member of the customer care team, who will provide answers to your questions or forward your questions to the appropriate national competition staff member. Please contact them by phone or email during normal business hours, but remember they are on eastern daylight time.

Of course, my hope is that everything goes flawlessly, but I want to make sure you have the contact information, just in case it is needed.

May I take this opportunity to express gratitude to our amazing students for their dedicated preparation and commitment, and to our advisors for their support during these challenging times. I know our students will do their best.

Best wishes to you all,

Richard Wittwer

State Director
